SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT GOALS OF THE UNITED NATIONS IN LINE

PEACE, JUSTICE AND STRONG INSTITUTIONS POLICY

Partnerships Strategy for Purposes

The concept of cooperation has a critical importance for the studies to be carried out within the scope of the Sustainable Development Goals, and cooperation processes are also discussed under the title of partnerships for purposes.

Sustainability is taken into account in the studies planned and carried out as FMIPH and processes are organized in this context. Within the scope of FMIPH Strategic Plan (2021-2025) and R&D Strategy Document (2021-2025), the following objectives-targets and the strategies determined to achieve them are directly related to partnerships to be made in line with sustainable development goals:

- Increasing the number of national and international funded projects carried out with research activities by at least 5% in order to contribute to the region, country and world economy by improving the research environment,
- Increasing international exchange collaborations by 3% in order to support international educational movement in order to make FMIPH a center of attraction in the field of international higher education,

- Establishing a joint center of excellence with national and international stakeholders in order to create a research environment aimed at excellence by ensuring the sustainability and development of the institutional structure in priority areas,
- interdisciplinary research ecosystem and encourage R&D studies so that pioneering research can be carried out worldwide in priority areas ,
- sectoral relations and cooperation and increasing recognition among industrial organizations by facilitating the implementation of solution-oriented research activities in order to develop relations and collaborations with national and international stakeholders in priority areas,
- Developing relations and cooperation with national institutions and organizations by facilitating the implementation of multi- stakeholder research activities within the scope of national priorities, increasing recognition,
- Developing relations and cooperation by facilitating the implementation of research activities with international participation within the scope of global trends, increasing international recognition,
- should work in coordination with EU R&D innovation ecosystem stakeholders in order to transform the knowledge obtained from research results into high value-added products and services for the society.
